GENETIC DIVERSITY

- Genetic diversity among fourteen different Fusarium species using RAPD marker 55-60
SHITAL R. BONDE, ANIKET K. GADE, MAHENDRA K. RAI

ECOSYSTEM DIVERSITY

- Fungal species isolated from Quercus castaneifolia in Hyrcanian Forests, North of Iran 61-66
MOHAMMAD REZA KAVOSI, FERIDON FARIDI, GOODARZ HAJIZADEH
- Observations on arbuscular mycorrhiza associated with important edible tuberous plants grown in wet evergreen forest in Assam, India 67-72
RAJESH KUMAR, ASHWANI TAPWAL, SHAILESH PANDEY, RAJA RISHI, DEVAPOD BORAH
- Diversity and frequency of macrofungi associated with wet ever green tropical forest in Assam, India 73-78
ASHWANI TAPWAL, RAJESH KUMAR, SHAILESH PANDEY
- Fungal diversity associated with bamboo litter from Bambusetum of Rain Forest Research Institute, Northeast India 79-88
RAJESH KUMAR, ASHWANI TAPWAL, JAYASREE BORGOHAIN
- Effect of gap size of selective cutting method on plant species diversity and composition in beech (Fagus orientalis) forests, Ramsar, Mazandaran Province, North of Iran 89-94
HASSAN POURBABAEI, HAMIDREZA HADDADI-MOGHADDAM, MARZIEH BEGYOM-FAGHIR, TOOBA ABEDI
- Population dynamics of cuscus in tourist island of Ahe, District of Nabire, Papua 95-100
ANTON SILAS SINERY, CHANDRADEWANA BOER, WARTIKA ROSA FARIDA
- Evolution of oviposition behavior in gypsy moth (Lymantria dispar) in Hyrcanian forests, North of Iran 101-105
GOODARZ HAJIZADEH, MOHAMMAD REZA KAVOSI, HAMID JALILVAND

ETHNOBIOLOGY

- Ethnobotanical study and nutrient content of local vegetables consumed in Central Kalimantan, Indonesia 106-111

A top-down view of a petri dish containing a red agar medium. The surface is covered with numerous microbial colonies of various sizes and colors, including white, green, and grey. The colonies are scattered across the dish, with some larger, more prominent ones in the center and smaller ones towards the edges. The petri dish is set against a yellow background.
